Wabash Grant
Symposium
Participants
MARY CLARK MOSCHELLA, Ph.D.  Symposium Facilitator

Mary Clark Moschella is the Roger J. Squire Professor of Pastoral Care and Counseling at Yale Divinity School. Prior to joining the YDS faculty in 2010, Professor Moschella taught at Wesley Theological Seminary in Washington, D.C. for ten years. Before that, she was a pastor in United Church of Christ congregations in Massachusetts for thirteen years. Her publications include: Ethnography as a Pastoral Practice: An Introduction; and Living Devotions: Reflections on Immigration, Identity, and Religious Imagination. She has edited, with Jane F. Maynard and Leonard Hummel, Pastoral Bearings: Lived Religion and Pastoral Theology. Her most recent manuscript, supported by a Henry Luce III Fellowship in Theology, is entitled, Caring for Joy: Narrative, Theology, and Practice (forthcoming from Brill Publishing). Professor Moschella teaches courses in ethnography, psychopathology, and feminist and womanist pastoral theology and care. She co-leads the Study Group for Religious Practices and Pastoral Research in the Society for Pastoral Theology and is a member of the International Academy of Practical Theology. She serves on the editorial boards of the Journal of Pastoral Theology and the Journal of Childhood and Religion. She is a 2012-13 Public Voices Thought Leadership Fellow at Yale.

SUSAN WILLHAUCK, Ph.D.  Project Director

Dr. Willhauck is an Associate Professor of Pastoral Theology at Atlantic School of Theology in Halifax, Nova Scotia, where she has served since 2009. Susan teaches the Graduate Project Seminar at AST among other courses in worship and Christian education. Prior to AST she was on the faculty of Wesley Theological Seminary in Washington, DC. She is an ordained minister in the United Methodist Church and a member of the Virginia Conference where she has served several congregations. She received the Masters of Theological Studies from Wesley Theological Seminary and the Ph.D. from the Catholic University of America. She is the author (or co-author) of several books, including The Web of Women's Leadership: Recasting Congregational Ministry; Back Talk! Women Leaders Changing the Church; Ministry Unplugged: Uncommon Calls to Serve, and Breaking Through the Stained Glass Ceiling. Dr. Willhauck received a grant from the Wabash Center for Teaching and Learning for this research project, entitled, “Teaching Qualitative Research in Theological Education to Enhance Leadership for Change in the Church.”

BERNARDINE KETELAARS, D.Min.

A lifelong resident of London, Ontario, Dr. Ketelaars has worked for the Diocese of London in various offices for over 30 years – the last 20 years as secretary / executive assistant to the Bishop of the Diocese. In June 2014, Bernardine joined the Faculty of St. Peter’s Seminary where she serves as Director of Lay and Pastoral Formation, and Lecturer in Lay Ministry as well as Missiology & Evangelization. Bernardine attained her Master of Divinity degree from St. Peter’s Seminary in 2001, and recently obtained her Doctor of Ministry degree from the University of St. Michael’s College in Toronto, where she utilized qualitative research for her doctoral dissertation, entitled "Harkening to the Voices of the Lost Ones: Attending to the Stories of Baptized Catholics No Longer Participating in the Worship and Community Life of the Church".
BOYUNG LEE, Ph.D.

The Rev. Dr. Lee, a native of Korea, is Associate Professor of Practical Theology, Education and Spiritual Formation at Pacific School of Religion, and a Cord Doctoral Faculty at Graduate Theological Union where she has been teaching since 2002, and became the first woman of color to receive a tenure in 2007. She is also an ordained United Methodist minister who served churches in California, Connecticut, Massachusetts and Korea. Dr. Lee received her Master of Divinity degree from Claremont School of Theology and a Ph.D. in Theology and Education from Boston College in 2004. Boyung is the author of Transforming Congregations Through Community: Faith Formation From the Seminary to the Church (Westminster/John Knox Press, 2013), and three forthcoming books on Interfaith Congregational Education, Protestant Spiritual Formation in Intercultural & Interfaith World, and a theological commentary on the Book of Kings. Her research and teaching interests include Intercultural/Interreligious Pedagogy; Critical Religious Pedagogy; Post-colonial Biblical Studies; Asian/Feminist Theology; Protestant Spiritual Formation in the Global South.

DAVID M. MELLOTT, Ph.D.

Dr. Mellott is Associate Professor of Practical Theology at Lancaster Theological Seminary in Pennsylvania, where he has been a member of the faculty since June 2005. In October 2011, he was selected as the fourteenth Dean of Lancaster Seminary. Courses that he has taught at Lancaster Seminary include: the first year doctor of ministry seminar: Listening to the Faithful, as well as Queer Theologizing, Ministerial Formation Seminars, Introduction to Philosophy, Happiness and Christianity, and the Table and the Font. He also holds a Ph.D. from Emory University, a M.A. in Religious Studies and a Licentiate in Sacred Theology from the Catholic University of Leuven, Belgium, and a BA in English Literature and Latin American Studies from the Pontifical College Josephinum. In addition, he has studied at Sorbonne University in Paris and the Goethe Institute in Munich. Prior to his doctoral studies, Dr. Mellott was a residential faculty member and coordinator of worship at St. Mary’s Seminary & University in Baltimore, MD from 1994-1997. David lives in Lancaster with his husband, the Rev. Lance Mullins, and their canine daughter, Sophie.

NICHOLE RENÉE PHILLIPS, Ph.D.

Nichole Renée Phillips is the Assistant Professor of Sociology, Religion, and Culture at Candler School of Theology, Emory University. A sociologist of religion, she teaches courses in community and congregational studies. Her research interests lie in the areas of social psychology; religion and culture; race and gender; and cultural anthropology with a focus on ethnographic research. Her first monograph probes religion, politics, American values and race as garnered from a regional study of a southern, rural community. She received the A.B. from Wellesley College, the M.Div. from Harvard University’s Divinity School, and an M.A. and Ph.D. in Religion, Psychology, and Culture from Vanderbilt University.
SIROJ SORAJJAKOOL, Ph.D.

Siroj Sorajjakool currently serves as Professor of Religion, Psychology, and Counseling in the School of Religion and Professor in the Department of Counseling and Family Sciences, School of Behavioral Health, Loma Linda University. He is a Diplomate in the American Association of Pastoral Counselors. He received his M.A. in religious studies from Andrew University extension campus in Pune, India, and his Ph.D. in Theology and Personality from Claremont School of Theology. Currently, he is working toward a Ph.D. in Policy, Management and Leadership in Higher Education at Chulalongkorn University in Thailand, focusing on the role of higher education in facilitating social mobility for peasants in Thailand. This qualitative research is based on interviews with more than 70 participants in 18 provinces in Thailand.

TODD DAVID WHITMORE, Ph.D.

Todd David Whitmore employs ethnographic methods to raise theological questions. He has spent a year and a half on the ground in northern Uganda and South Sudan, with most of that time spent living in Internally Displaced Persons camps. Professor Whitmore is currently working on a theologically-oriented book-length manuscript titled, Gospel Mimesis: An Anthropological Theology. In addition, he is in the process of editing over 300 hours of interviews with IDP camp residents as part of his project, Acholi Voices: Democratizing the War Testimony of Northern Uganda, which is also to come out as a published volume. Dr. Whitmore received a B.A. from Wabash College, a M.Div. from Harvard Divinity School, and a Ph.D. from the University of Chicago Divinity School. He is currently Associate Professor in the Department of Theology and Concurrent Associate Professor in the Department of Anthropology at the University of Notre Dame.

NATALIE WIGG-STEVENSON, Ph.D.

Dr. Wigg-Stevenson is Assistant Professor of Contextual Education and Theology at Emmanuel College in Toronto. She received the B.A. in Art History and Religious Studies at McMaster University (2002), the M.Div. from Yale Divinity School (2005) and the Ph.D. in Theological Studies from Vanderbilt University (2011). Natalie's recent publications in the field of ethnographic theology include: “From Proclamation to Conversation: Ethnographic Disruptions to Theological Normativity,” in Radical Theologies (Palgrave Communications); Ethnographic Theology: An Inquiry Into the Production of Theological Knowledge (New York: Palgrave Press, 2014); and “Reflexive Theology: A Preliminary Proposal,” in Practical Matters (Spring, 2013). She co-chairs the “Ecclesial Practices” group at the AAR, and is a member of the Ecclesiology and Ethnography network.